As the company explains, house owners in Washington DC are familiar with the challenges that they face when selling their houses. The longer their property is on the market, the less likely it will sell at or near its asking price.

In the Washington DC area, there is an unfortunate trend of sellers lowering the price of their homes as they suffer from a record number of pending foreclosures. Many homeowners have resorted to other ways of selling their home, for instance with a quick cash sale, in the case that they no longer want to deal with expenses and complications like an extended period on the market.

Dependable Homebuyers seeks to alleviate this issue for Washington DC homeowners, since the company states that they understand the myriad situations that can motivate homeowners to sell their houses in a rush.
