September 28, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

After their successful launch in the European market, StarOfService has announced the launch of its online platform for New Zealand customers. The company aims to connect customers to local businesses and professionals. With its simple and fast transaction process, customers can contact a wide range of professionals that will cater to their specific needs. Local professionals are encouraged to register their service online since it's free. This is also a good opportunity to gain new clients and to build a good network of customers.

Customers will have access to qualified professionals from different countries but more importantly, they will be able to find a person who will perform the job and is available locally. Booking a service is now easier and faster. Customers can post a request, wait for a response from different professionals and then choose the best services that suits their need and budget.

With new competitors in the market, StarOfService has shown to be more ahead when it comes to their different pricing schemes. Professionals will only pay for the specified rate they want by using StarOfService credits. Also, they ensure the quality of the service provided by the local business and professionals.

"We aim to provide a faster and easier transaction between clients and professionals. Using this new marketing platform, local businesses and professionals will be able to expand their clientele. At the same time, customers will have access to a wide range of qualified professionals." says Iman Bahrani, one of the representatives of StarOfService New Zealand.

StarOfService is a French startup company mainly located in Paris. It started November 2013 and has since grown drastically gaining multimillion revenues last year. They continue to expand to different countries and connect more customers and professionals in one community.
