June 30, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

CorSanitas, a cutting-edge healthcare organization from Boulder, Colorado, has recently opened a second location in Denver. The company offers C-IMT ultrasound scans to help detect, prevent, and reverse heart disease and stroke.

According to the American Heart Association, 48% of all American adults suffer from some form of heart disease. It is the #1 killer of American citizens. Strokes are # 3. Stroke and heart disease are caused by factors that are both genetic and lifestyle-related. Anyone can fall victim to them and CorSanitas says that it deals with patients from all walks of life of all ages on a regular basis. CorSanitas recommends that everyone have a C-IMT ultrasound scan every year.

C-IMT is a detailed, non-invasive, ultrasound scan of the carotid arteries to precisely measure the buildup of plaque. The procedure sets the gold standard for detecting atherosclerosis and the accumulation of plaque in the walls of the arteries and in the arterial lumen (where the blood flows). The measurements are accurate to 1/1000 of a millimeter. The entire process is painless, takes 10 minutes, and is affordable enough to be included in one's yearly health checkup. The procedure gives a definitive analysis of one's risk for heart disease and stroke as it can detect the build-up of plaque in its earliest stages.

CorSanitas has a simple 3 step process for anyone having the C-IMT procedure. The first step is to schedule a C-IMT scan using the form on the website or by giving the company a call. Once the patient chooses either the Boulder or the newly opened Denver location, they need to select a date and time that works for them. The patient is then required to provide the center with their full name, email, and phone number so that the center's professionals can contact them for any further details.

A spokesperson for the center talks about the benefits of the procedure by saying, "While the world is obsessed with the amount of death and destruction caused by the COVID-19 pandemic, another silent killer has been wreaking more havoc on the health of everyday Americans for many years. According to American Heart Association statistics, 655,000 Americans died of heart disease in 2017 which equates to approximately 1,800 people every day or one person every 36 seconds. In contrast around 500,000 Americans died from COVID-19 between March 2020 and March 2021.

CorSanitas's C-IMT procedure is the best and most effective first step one can take in securing a long life for oneself. For those who are asking the question "What is a C-IMT scan?", give CorSanitas a call today and they will answer any questions.
