Chef Wonders, a consumer home goods company, has introduced a new lemon squeezer. The Miami, Florida based company offers household products to consumers, and the said product is the first in their line of kitchen accessories. Ori Firouz, a spokesperson for Chef Wonders, said, "We are proud to introduce our premium quality stainless steel lemon squeezer into the market. We feel that it will make getting juice from lemons so much easier for our customers, and it will be something that they will come to rely on in the kitchen."

The company wants to stress that the lemon squeezer is produced using a strong material that will not break or rust, and that it comes with a large and small citrus sprayer as well as a silicon ring to prevent leakage. The company also revealed that the idea for the squeezer came from the need to extract juice from a lemon, which has been observed to be difficult without the right tools.

"It just makes it so much easier. You just have to place the lemon in it and squeeze, and it's an easy to clean and completely food safe stainless steel product," points out Ori Firouz.

The lemon squeezer hit the Amazon marketplace recently, and has gained several positive reviews in the short time that it has been available. Customers seem to find it very effective and easy to manage. Chef Wonders offers a 100 percent money back guarantee for the first 30 days after purchase.

Chef Wonders is a relatively new business offering products to the Amazon marketplace. Their newly released lemon squeezer is the first, of what the company states will be many household products to come in the future. Ori Firouz adds, "We will be thoroughly researching and looking for ideas of good products to offer our customers. We want to supply only the highest quality and products that consumers need, something that will make their lives a bit easier."
