Tree care work in general is hazardous, but tree removal is especially dangerous. Successfully felling a tree requires knowledge of tree physics, biology, dangerous tools, advanced cutting techniques, and more. Falling limbs, malfunctioning equipment, or the tree itself may injure homeowners who attempt their own tree removal. This is why tree service jobs, especially for large trees, should be left for the professionals to handle.

If there is suspicion that a tree is dead or dying, see a professional to have it removed as soon as possible. A decaying tree often starts with the inside and can be very unstable even for professionals who know what they are doing. There are many points of failure when removing decayed trees so getting help from someone who knows how to properly handle such a job is always the safest approach.

Santa Cruz Tree Service Experts specializes in safe tree removal. Even though it is their specialty, tree removal is never recommended as the first option. According to the company, they always look to save the tree if possible. They admit however, tree removal is sometimes unavoidable. When tree removal becomes necessary, Santa Cruz Tree Service Experts always uses the most up to date and safest methods available to do the job to protect property and everyone involved.

Santa Cruz Tree Service Experts is accepting new customers. Those interested in a consultation should visit the company's website and complete the online contact request form. Potential customers can also contact the company's customer support at 831-204-0921.
