

Stockton Tree Experts Hire Certified Arborists To Manage Tree Service Jobs for Customers

June 30, 2021

June 30, 2021 -
With summer in full swing, many homeowners are looking for answers on how to care for their trees. Property owners can never be too careful who they hire to care for their beautiful trees. Anyone that provides tree services can call himself or herself an arborist. Arborist is a general term and does not specify any particular level of competency. It is not an official title or backed by any certification. In contrast, a certified arborist is to trees what doctors are to humans.

Certified arborists are highly trained and knowledgeable individuals that know how to properly care for trees. They are experienced in landscaping, pruning, tree removal, and disease analysis. If tree owners want to keep their trees strong, healthy and looking their best it is important that they be cared for by certified arborists.

Company representative, Hanna Anatalia, stated, ?We hire certified arborists to lead our tree service teams on all client jobs to ensure customer goals are met. Our tree service in Stockton has been turning unsafe trees into safe, beautiful, functional, and healthy trees. Our certified arborists work with Stockton property owners to come up with viable solutions for various issues, which affect their trees.?

Trees should be inspected at least twice a year. When certified arborists inspect trees, they can spot common symptoms of certain problems such as insect infestation and disease. Certain insects may cause damage to the trees that is only noticeable once branches start falling or leaves begin to discolor. By noticing these signs, certified arborists could respond with a solution to bring the tree back to optimal health. Tree owners can help certified arborists by keeping an eye out for infestations, and reporting any possible signs of illness they see to their local certified arborist.

Deadly insects are not the only problem certified arborists have to be on the lookout for though. The fungi that cause anthracnose diseases in trees appears to be increasing due to warmer climates. These fungal infections can weaken a tree by causing dark lesions on leaves, sunken lesions and cankers on twigs and stems. In general, these fungal infections do not kill the host but repeated infection may lead to other problems such as weakened limbs or branches, which could eventually lead them breaking off completely during high winds or storms. Falling tree limbs can damage property or injure unaware people nearby.

Stockton Tree Experts not only have certified arborists that manage their tree service teams, the company itself holds the certification from the International Society of Arboriculture. The International Society of Arboriculture (ISA) serves the tree care industry as a membership association and a credentialing organization that promotes the professional practice of arboriculture. Property owners can have peace of mind when working with Stockton Tree Experts understanding their trees will receive the best possible care from experts.
