

Joomony Launches Beta Release of Its Job Platform

September 29, 2015

September 29, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Joomony Jobs Inc., based in Vancouver, Canada has launched in beta and is currently open to the public for a limited time. Joomony, helps new and small business owners succeed by providing free job postings and allowing business owners, freelancers and contractors to retain all their earnings for jobs awarded on the Joomony platform. The owner of Joomony understands that small businesses are the lifeblood to the economy. According to 2013 statistics, small businesses in the US account for employing over half the working population, that means close to 130 million Americans work for small businesses. In Canada small businesses employ 7.7 million Canadians or 69.7% of the working population. Small businesses in the United States account for 60 to 80 percent of new hires annually. Based on these statistics small businesses are the most important segment of the economy, employing far more Americans and Canadians than any other sector.

With the importance of small businesses to the success of an economy, still a staggering 80% of new businesses fail within the first year according to Bloomberg. The rate of business failures decrease to 50% after 5 years, however this is still a staggering number. The owners of Joomony understands the struggles that new and small business owners have to deal with, the cash flow issues, the hiring issues and the ability to find clients for their products and services. The goal of Joomony is to help new and small business owners succeed and reduce the failure rate of new and small businesses in North America. Joomony plans on helping new and small businesses by making the hiring process easier by providing a trusted marketplace to hire employees and allowing businesses, freelancers and contractors to find people who need and want their services or products. Joomony wants to provide these services to new and small business owners at no cost to them, which means Joomony will not charge for any job postings nor will they take a percentage of the earnings for jobs awarded on Joomony.

One of the ways Joomony plans to enhance the hiring process is to only allow trusted endorsements and reviews. Joomony believes this, along with other technologies utilized, will allow small business owners to hire faster, saving them valuable time and money so they can focus on growing their business.
