Tree services is risky business. There are countless accidents each year and many end up being fatal. Falls are the leading cause of tree service fatalities, followed by electrocution, being struck by a falling tree limb or trunk, and auto accidents with trees. Proper training is key to avoiding these hazards.

The costs of tackling tree care without professional help can run high in a lot of ways such as damaged property, medical bills from being injured while working with dangerous equipment such as chainsaws or ladders are just two examples among many others.

Even the simplest of tasks, such as pruning a tree's branches or trimming its trunk can prove to be dangerous for those who lack training.

To avoid harming their trees and themselves when performing basic maintenance on them, it is best if tree owners leave this job up to professionals with experience in handling these types of projects. They will know how much pressure needs applying during sawing operations so that they do not rip out large chunks at once; and find ways around any difficult spots by using chisels first before resorting to more drastic measures like chainsaws.

Tree Service Elk Grove arborists received there certifications from the International Society of Arboriculture.
