Bryter Restoration of Wilmington, a company based in Wilmington, NC, is pleased to announce that they are offering water damage restoration and other related services in Wilmington and surrounding areas, including New Hanover, Brunswick, and Pender Counties. Aside from water damage restoration, the company also provides flood damage restoration, mold remediation, mold inspection, fire damage restoration, and other restoration services. Their technicians are available 24 hours a days, 7 days per week and 365 days each year. Their rapid response teams can restore walls, floors, and personal properties.

John Bryter from Bryter Restoration of Wilmington says, ?Water damage can be devastating for homeowners, ranging from leaking faucets to broken water heaters and flooding. Excessive water can cause electrical hazards, costly damage to your home?s structure, and even mold growth if it is not addressed immediately. We provide a complete range of restoration services for residential and commercial property owners. These services include repairing cosmetic and structural damage, bacterial, mold growth and damaged electrical systems and appliances.?

For several years, they have been providing water damage restoration services in Wilmington. They can offer complete restoration services for all kinds of damage, including water, fire, smoke, and storm. For water restoration, the company starts by eliminating all standing water from the interior structural components of the home or building, such as floors, ceilings, and walls using the latest water extraction technology and methods. They will also determine the source of water damage and perform the requisite repairs.

The company also provides mold testing and remediation services. Mold testing is used to determine the source of the mold infestation. It should be noted that mold multiplies by releasing spores, which are invisible to the unaided eye. They spread to various parts of the home and thrive wherever there is moisture and oxygen. These spores can cause health problems in certain people, especially those who have allergies and asthma. In-mold remediation, they take the appropriate measures to prevent mold spores from getting released into the air and travel to other parts of the house through the air ducts. They use the appropriate equipment to ensure that the mold infestation remains where it has been found and then remove the mold effectively. John Bryter says, ?Those who want to get more information about our services can follow us on Facebook.?

Meanwhile, they also provide flood damage restoration, which must be done as soon as possible in order to minimize the possible long-lasting impact of the damage caused by the flood waters on the building and various belongings. The flood damage restoration process consists of: getting rid of the flood waters; decontaminating the home and the various belongings; and making the property safe for making any necessary repairs. The property and various contents that can be salvaged are dried and dehumidified to make sure that there is no residual water, which can lead to mold growth.

And for homes and other properties that have been damaged by fire, they offer fire damage restoration services. Just like with a flood, fire damage restoration must be done as soon as possible to prevent further damage to property. The professionals from Bryter Restoration of Wilmington will carefully assess the damage caused by the fire, smoke, soot, and water on the walls, fixtures, furniture and other things found the home or property. After performing a careful and complete evaluation of the damage, these professionals will provide a quote and if the property owner accepts, they will proceed with the restoration process. They will first ensure that any more damage is prevented from happening by strengthening weakened structures and plugging up holes. Next, they will clean up the soot and smoke from the various parts of the home, including the walls, carpets, and upholstery. They will repair any parts of the home and belongings that can be repaired, especially those priceless belongings that are impossible to replace.
