New DC Roofing of Arizona Blog Discusses Why a Periodic Tucson Roof Inspection is Recommended

July 16, 2021

TUCSON, AZ - July 16, 2021 -
DC Roofing of Arizona is a company that always encourages its customers to be proactive when it comes to their all-important roof. One of the best ways to do this is by home and business owners having their roofs inspected regularly. This company?s many years in the roofing industry have taught it that small problems with uninspected roofs that go unnoticed can often result in bigger and more expensive repairs later on. The topic of having its customers get regular roofing inspections done is so important to those at the company, that they even recently posted a blog article on their website which discusses this subject further. That blog article is titled ?Why Hire a Roof Inspector?? This Tucson-based roofer offers a wide variety of commercial and residential roof installation, repair, and maintenance services. They have also established a reputation for providing roofing services that are reliable and affordable.

The new DC Roofing blog article started by pointing out that the company offers roof inspections as a part of its proactive maintenance services. These services are designed to help its customers avoid costlier emergency roof repairs and the extra headaches and stress that go along with that. It also mentioned that these inspections can give a customer peace of mind that their roof is ready to take on the heavy rains that often accompany the late summer Arizona monsoon season. This recently posted article also pointed out that the cost of a roof inspection is insignificant compared to roof repair costs and how something such as a small leak can quickly progress into a major roof repair problem. That?s why it?s so important for those in the Tucson area to get their roofs inspected regularly.

The blog post also discussed why when getting a roof inspection done, a customer should hire a licensed Tucson roofer such as them to do that inspection. It explained how thorough their experienced roofing techs are when they perform an inspection. They will walk an entire roof and look for any signs they may indicate a roof problem. This includes checking the condition of the shingle or other roof covering. It stated that their inspectors will also look for other roof covering abnormalities such as excessive cracking or wear, raised or sunken sections of the roof that may indicate a structural weakness, and missing or corroded fasteners such as the important nails that hold down shingles and other roofing materials. The article mentioned that they will also check leak-prone areas around roof vents, chimneys, and skylights to make sure that they are properly sealed. The article wrapped up by pointing out why a roof inspection is a vital part of roof and home safety.

Those that have had a roof inspection performed by DC Roofing of Arizona have expressed satisfaction with their inspection and any follow-up work that needed to be done. Finley Shawgo stated in his 5-star review, ?These guys were prompt, polite and professional. After a roof inspection, we decided to go forward with them installing our new roof and they did a great job. They finished sooner than expected and at a price that was cheaper than most of the other quotes I received (the only cheaper quote was from someone that wasn't licensed). I have to believe DC Roofing is one of the best in Tucson when it comes to any type of roof work you may need. I would highly recommend this company.?

In addition to roof inspections, DC Roofing of Arizona also does all-size commercial and residential roof repair services. This includes leak detection & resolution services and one of their specialties which is whole-roof replacements. They are also well-known in the Tucson area for their quality commercial flat roofing services. This includes the application of such time-tested flat roof coatings as spray polyurethane foam, single-ply membrane, metal roof materials, and traditional tar and gravel roof overpayments. More information on this reputable Tucson area roofing company?s services can be found on its website.
