July 23, 2021

July 23, 2021 -
Wilmington, NC based Bryter Restoration of Wilmington would like to reach out to the wider public to discuss the importance of seeking professional mold inspection & removal after water damage has occurred in their home or business.

When homes are damaged by storms or floods, there is always a risk of mold growth occurring. When this happens, the health and safety of residents are placed at risk due to the harmful nature of molds. Molds are a type of fungus that use spores to reproduce and create colonies. The spores that molds produce are extremely tiny and can be inhaled by individuals. When these spores are inhaled at sufficiently high concentrations, there are many potential health issues that may occur. The spores may enter a person?s lungs and cause respiratory issues such as colds, coughs, and asthma. They may also trigger severe allergic reactions, especially to those who are extremely sensitive to molds. Mold spores can also lead to sore throats, itchy eyes, and itchy skin.

Mold loves growing in dark and damp areas. This means that storm or flood damage creates the ideal environment for mold growth. Given all the potential risks and dangers that mold growth could bring, property owners who have experienced storm or flood damage should not ignore the problem. It is advisable for them to seek professional mold remediation from reliable water damage restoration companies, such as Bryter Restoration of Wilmington.
