

Roofing Leads Hub Announces Services Catering To Roofers

October 12, 2015

October 12, 2015 -
Roofing Leads Hub, a business based in Albuquerque, NM, which focuses specifically on the online and digital marketing of roofing businesses, has now introduced services designed specifically to help roofing companies get more leads.

Many roofers struggle with roofing lead generation and as a result see huge fluctuations in business from month to month.

"The life blood of any roofing business is to get new leads," says Cynthia Goranson from Roofing Leads Hub. "We understand like no other how difficult it is to get a consistent flow of quality leads and we have a solution for that."

"Our lead generation system provides leads exclusively for your roofing company in your local area. No more sharing leads with 10 other roofers in your city hoping you will be the one who wins the job," adds Cynthia Goranson.

That is the old way of getting leads and as you know it is very expensive and ineffective. People are looking for a quality roofing company and this lead generation system helps prospects find your business.

With the fall season starting, homeowners need to make sure their roof is in good shape to weather the winter months. The severe rain and hail storms that have occured across the country this summer have caused significant damage and many homeowners can often take advantage of insurance to help with roof replacement costs.

Roofing Leads Hub provides a steady flow of interested roofing contractor leads for roofers across the country using a variety of online and offline lead generation strategies.

Leads are sent via phone directly to the local roofing business and are tracked carefully to ensure the quality of the leads.

This new proprietary lead generation system gives roofers a steady flow of interested prospects, helping to provide an opportunity for business growth and as such the possible return on investment is huge.
