Heirloom Culinary, a kitchenware business in Rushford, NY, is proud to announce that their heavy duty kitchen shears have become top selling items on Amazon. People can see it on Amazon, where it is now classed as one of the most popular items in its category. The fact that the shears are wrapped in either a silver or a beige burlap packaging is also something that has been greatly appreciated.

"Our shears are going from great to even better," says Jack Liguori, Heirloom Culinary's founder. "I love the fact that my design, inspired by my experiences as a pilot, is proving to be so popular. It really is more than I could have hoped for."

The shears have been designed to be super tough. This makes them suitable for any type of difficult kitchen task. Inspired by the aviation background of Liguori, the shears have been designed to withstand even the toughest jobs. In an airplane, shears can literally be lifesaving items that allow pilots to get out of a plane if need be, perform emergency repairs, or even survive after a crash. These shears are designed to be capable in any of those tasks, although they function just as well in a regular kitchen.

Since having originally been released, the shears have already received numerous positive reviews. "I Love Heavy Duty Kitchen Scissors!" says Stormy. "After years of frustration cutting up poultry with a meat cleaver, I decided to give them a try. I didn't expect much, so I was pleasantly surprised after experiencing how well the scissors worked. The fact that I'm able to make precise cuts when I cut up my poultry now (something I never mastered with a cleaver) is pure heaven! I'm really kicking myself for not thinking of buying poultry shears years ago."

The shears can also be seen on their site, where further information about the philosophy behind the scissors is also provided. The site also highlights the specific details of each element of the scissors, including the handles and blades. Customers can also see demonstrations of the shears in action and are informed that they come with a lifetime warranty.
