July 28, 2021 -

SafeAir Certified Mold Inspection Inc. is now Georgia?s highest rated indoor air quality testing company. Owned and operated by Jeremy Shelton and his team of toxic mold specialists, SafeAir has been a leader in mold and allergen testing for the last ten years. Shelton?s experience combined with his staff?s dedication to serving their customers, it?s no surprise why homeowners turn to SafeAir.

In their most recent review, SafeAir received on their Google My Business Profile; customer Arielle Thompson had this to say, "I manage an apartment complex and scheduled an appointment with SafeAir when a tenant complained about a mold problem in their apartment. Jeremy, with SafeAir, responded quickly, collected some air samples, and had a report back to me by the end of the week. Jeremy was very professional, reliable, and helpful. I recommend him to anyone who is dealing with a mold problem."

Unlike many other ?local? companies, all mold testing and mold inspection services are performed by full-time SafeAir staff, and not sub contractors. This ensures that customers receive the highest quality inspection and in the case that they need another analysis, the same person that performed the inspection is still available. SafeAir now has more than 135 perfect 5 star reviews online, reviews like Ms. Thompson?s are a near daily occurrence for the company. In another recent testimonial, Cory Winters describes his experience saying, ?I called SafeAir when I was purchasing a home that had mold in the basement. SafeAir tested and evaluated the basement the next day after my initial phone call. They provided me with solutions to resolve the mold problem and I am very happy.?

Understanding what is in the air that one breathes is a topic that the general public is beginning to take more seriously. With many homeowners spending more and more time at home indoor air quality has a much larger impact on health. Couple that with houses leaving the market at historic rates, leading to inspections being waived. New homeowners should seriously consider having their home tested. Phone consultations are free, and the information provided by one of the company's experts could be life-saving.
