Unity Spine & Joint offers full-service holistic-based therapies at its many pain clinics which are found throughout the Phoenix, Arizona area. It uses these treatments in an attempt to manage its patients' pain and help them on their road to recovery. The medical professionals at these clinics realize that if they use their many years of experience to choose the right therapies for their patients, this can help those patients reduce stress, be happier, and live fuller lives. That's why they are so committed to practicing responsible pain management and pain relief. These clinics even offer several treatments that are not found in typical pain management practices. Their well-rounded treatments use everything from diagnostic testing and medical procedures to the latest chiropractic and physical exercise modalities.

Dr. Thomas Morgan, chiropractor at Unity Spine & Joint, says, "There are few things that take away from life more than having to deal with persistent pain. It goes much deeper than just the physical aspects too as chronic pain can significantly impact one's mental health too. That's why the medical professionals at our clinics will exhaust every resource that we have in an effort to help alleviate our patients' pain and suffering."

The clinic's chiropractor gave as an example that many come to them seeking whiplash treatment in Glendale. There are several treatment methods that they use which may relieve whiplash (neck sprain) pain and help a patient recover from this ailment that's caused by a rapid back-and-forth movement of the neck. It's a common occurrence in car accidents, during some sports activities, and even in cases of other types of trauma such as slip and fall accidents. He says that it's also a tricky ailment that takes experienced medical professionals such as theirs to diagnose and treat. What makes it so unusual is that sometimes symptoms of whiplash do not show up until several days after an accident. The first line of treatment with whiplash usually consists of rest, OTC medications, and ice & heat but when the pain persists that's when their staff can help. Some of the methods that they use to treat neck sprains include having one of their chiropractors perform manual manipulation. Dr. Morgan stated that they can also incorporate massage therapy into the treatment and targeted injections. It was also mentioned that radiofrequency neuro ablation treatments are also commonly used to try and help those suffering from the effects of whiplash.

This chiropractor in Avondale can help people that are suffering from other ailments besides whiplash too with their wide variety of holistic-based therapies. They offer several therapies that are designed to try and help relieve back pain, arm & leg problems, and neck and shoulder ailments. He says that this includes such therapies as their trigger point, facet, joint, low-dose steroid, and epidural injections. Their medical professionals can also perform nerve blocks, medial branch blocks, and administer male testosterone therapy. Dr. Morgan added that they are very experienced when it comes to treating the type of pain that is commonly associated with auto accidents. This often includes combining chiropractic care with such physical, non-invasive medical modalities as ultrasound, phonophoresis, electrical stimulation, Iontophoresis, traction, TENS, moist heat, and paraffin treatments.

Patients that have received alternative treatment methods from the medical professionals at Unity Spine & Joint have expressed satisfaction with the service they have received. Lisa Fulcher says, "Love the entire staff! From the receptionist to the medical staff, massage therapists, and Doctors! They all truly care about their patients and their well-being. I love that they treat you holistically to get to the root of your pain and then work towards fixing the core issue." Marcus wrote in his 5-star review, "Great staff, friendly, and they truly care about making you feel better. I have been going there for various aches during the past year and I would absolutely recommend them."
