Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C. - Savannah, a law firm based in Savannah, GA, wants to inform victims of workplace accidents that they can depend on the firm?s personal injury attorneys to fight for their right for compensation. It is important for accident victims to realize that the offer for settlement they may receive from an insurance adjuster is typically much lower compared to the amount that they are legally entitled to. Thus, while the offer from the insurance adjuster may be tempting in view of the medical bills that accident victims may need to pay out-of-pocket for their medical treatments, it is advisable for them to consult with a personal injury lawyer in Savannah to determine the actual value of their case.

Tim Derrickson, a representative for Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C. - Savannah, says, ?Our lawyers will look at all angles of your case, including the nature of injuries that you have suffered, the cost of your past and future medical treatment, and the impact that the accident has had on your life. Using our experience and the assistance of experts, we will properly value your claim and enter into settlement negotiations, with the upper hand, against the insurance company.?

It is important to note that Georgia injury laws allow an injured individual to file a claim in a a number of circumstances. Each type of claim is different and should be handled by a personal injury attorney who is accomplished in that particular law. At Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C., their Savannah injury accident lawyers have more than 350 years of combined experience that they can use for the benefit of their clients.

Workplace accident cases need to be handled with care by experts because Georgia?s workplace laws are quite complex. Those who have been injured while on work duty have the legal right to make a worker?s compensation claim to recover the costs of medical treatment and any kind of permanent disability that may arise because of the injury. Victims will need to file their claim under the proper law or their case might be dismissed. Also, in some situations, it is possible to avoid worker?s compensation law and ask for damages directly from the third party that is responsible for the injuries. This is possible when the injuries were caused by the negligence of a party other than the employer. The personal injury lawyer will carefully examine the facts surrounding the incident and will direct the case to the appropriate individuals or business.

Aside from workplace accidents, the personal injury lawyers can also help protect the legal rights of victims of car accidents, bicycle accidents, slip and fall accidents, pedestrian accidents, defective products, nursing home abuse, medical malpractice, premises liability, construction accidents, and dog bites. Motor vehicle accidents are a common cause of injury but they can cause serious injuries and even death, especially if the vehicle involved is an 18-wheeler truck. The personal injury lawyers at Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C. - Savannah are all well-experienced and skilled in protecting the rights of victims of such accidents.

Bicycle accidents are also quite common and are usually caused by driver error or other conditions, such as dangerous intersections or poorly-maintained streets. Such accidents may result into: a road rash; head injuries; spinal cord injuries; broken bones; neck trauma, including paralysis; and cuts and bruises. Because of the seriousness of injuries caused by bicycle accidents, victims need to consult with a personal injury attorney to protect their legal rights.

Slip and fall accidents may result into serious injuries and typically occur in a building or property because of dangerous conditions like a slippery floor. Property owners and employers may be held responsible for the injuries if it is proven that they neglected to remedy the dangerous condition despite knowing about it.
