New York - The civil rights laws were created to protect and guarantee everyone's fundamental liberties. Individuals who feel their civil rights have been violated by the justice system often need to consult a New York no-fault insurance lawyer.

Civil liberties in America have come under scrutiny in modern times and are still prominent in news headlines and social unrest. David S. Leigh Esq. is the best person to understand the plight of civil liberties violators. His customers rely on him as a New York no-fault insurance lawyer to hold those who violate their civil rights accountable.

"We like to think that the United States stands for liberty and security for all citizens. However, we know that this is not always the case. We see every day where our systems are failing people. We still see that the law guarantees equal rights to all people, but we also see discrimination against individuals and even the institutions that are supposed to protect and uphold these fundamental civil rights," Mr. Leigh stated. Our firm is committed to the principle that every person is entitled to justice. However, many of our clients have seen firsthand that justice is not always fair for everyone in our system. This is why we are often called upon to use the power of law to even the playing field.

His unwavering advocacy for victims of crimes such as police brutality, excessive force, and sexual assault has earned Mr. Leigh many testimonials and accolades.

William Spencer from New York states: "David has helped my small business (photography) with several proposals and bid letters. He also took the time to explain the language of each letter. I would definitely use David again for all the legal needs of my business!"

These facts are what we see on the streets and in our local communities. Civil rights injury claims have been one of the most popular claims in New York City. The number of federal civil liberties claims has increased dramatically over the last few years. Unfortunately, Mr. Leigh is well aware that many civil rights are being violated by entities entrusted with protecting them.

Although the justice system may seem difficult, many people face it every day believing that the system has been rigged. This mentality has led to abuses in many areas of law enforcement and government. His firm and Mr. Leigh have dedicated their careers in civil rights advocacy to ensure that others are heard and civil rights violators are held accountable.

Mr. Leigh and the Law Office of David S. Leigh P.C. are skilled New York civil rights lawyers. They protect civil liberties of people who have been violated. His profession has been dedicated to making sure that everyone's voice is heard, particularly those whose civil rights have been violated by the justice systems.
