August 12, 2021 -
GA based Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C. - Albany is encouraging their community to learn more about certain types of personal injury cases. Given that accidents or similar incidents can happen at any time to anyone, the firm states that it is always worth knowing what steps should be taken in the aftermath of such events.

One type of personal injury case, according to the firm, has to do with defective (and therefore dangerous) products. This is especially true for medical products that are intended to save lives or even improve a patient?s quality of life but instead cause severe injury or worse. A patient who needs a medical device is often more vulnerable than an individual who does not, which can make the consequences of a malfunction even more serious. This is one reason why the firm strongly advises their community to consider legal action against those responsible ? in addition to helping the victim seek compensation that will ease any ensuing financial concerns, legal action can prompt the negligent party to improve or even recall their product, thereby saving many other people from suffering a similar fate.

Medical devices come in all shapes and sizes, and they are used for a variety of purposes. Examples of medical devices include pacemakers, defibrillators, prosthetic limbs, sleep apnea machines, insulin pumps and so on. Any of these devices can cause harm to a user if they are defective. Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C. - Albany clarifies that a medical device is considered defective if there is a design defect, a manufacturing defect or the labeling is not sufficient to warn the user of the risks. However, they acknowledge that this can quickly start to feel too complicated to deal with. Fortunately, any individual who feels they may have been wronged in this manner are welcome to contact the firm?s expert attorneys and explain the situation at length. The firm has long made it their policy to be easy to reach, so a single phone call is all it takes to find help. This is made evident by the positive feedback the firm receives online.

Mytrice Allen, who awarded the firm a full 5-Star rating for their services, explains that, ?Rhonda was our case worker. She kept up with all of my medical bills and made sure I knew what was going on whenever I called. My attorney, Matt Kirtlink, is spectacular. He worked hard to get me a fair settlement after my accident with a direct hit from a semi. I highly recommend him and Rhonda!?

Another top-rated review from Michelle Parks sheds lights on how easy it is to reach an attorney when in need. Their review says, ?I love this law firm, they always responded quickly whenever I had a question, and they always kept me informed. My attorney was very professional, knowledgeable and pleasant at all times. I definitely recommend the Ken Nugent law firm.?

Reviews of this nature are not uncommon for the firm, and the team takes great pride in their ability to work alongside clients to pursue their goals. In most cases, such goals consist of gaining the financial compensation the victim is due, but the firm explains that this is not always the case. Clients may have additional needs that need to be taken into account over the course of their case, which is why the attorneys at Kenneth S. Nugent, P.C. make it their mission to accommodate these needs wherever possible. Their goal is always to ensure the client is able to take back their life and rebuild after an accident, particularly if they suffered life-changing injuries as a result of the incident in question. They assert that they will do everything in their power to ensure a satisfactory, positive result for every client.
