August 25, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

MM Dynamic of New York is a reputable Hudson Valley roofing company that prides itself on keeping its residential and commercial customers informed on a variety of roof-related topics. That includes the subject of roof warranties which was the focus of one of the latest blogs posted to its website. It's an article that gives keen insight into a subject that is not often discussed in detail by roofing companies. This blog post is just one of many that have been released on MM Dynamic's website at <https://www.mmdynamicofny.com/>.

This new blog titled "What Roofing Products Have the Best Warranties?" first stated that a new roof is an investment that all home and business owners will need to make at some time and they should have that investment protected as much as possible. A solid warranty certainly plays a part in that. The blog warned customers to be aware that all warranties are not created equal and discussed this in more detail. It went on to say that there is often some confusion between a manufacturer's product warranty which covers roofing materials and a workmanship warranty which is supplied by a roofing contractor. This blog post also urged roofing customers to be fully aware of the work they are about to receive and the guarantees that back up the roofing materials and the work that is performed by the contractor.

Also discussed in this new MM Dynamic of New York blog article are some questions that those getting roofing work done should ask their contractor. This includes what type of roof warranty is being offered, what type of warranty is offered on the products, and what does a customer need to do to maintain their roof warranty. It also mentioned what will void a roof warranty and what is not covered by a roof warranty. After that, the blog went into depth on why a roofing customer needs to recognize whether they are getting just a warranty on the materials (manufacturers warranty) or a more comprehensive and preferred full warranty which covers both materials and workmanship. The article then gave as an example how they at MM Dynamic have combined with Prokol Protective Coatings to offer some excellent full warranties on the commercial roofing projects that the company takes on. This latest blog article from the company ended by stating that every residential and commercial roofing customer should be aware of the warranty variables that are associated with their upcoming roofing project. This blog is posted in its entirety here at <https://www.mmdynamicofny.com/post/what-roofing-products-have-the-best-warranties>.

The company owner, Miklos Moritz, went on to say that besides the exceptional warranties that his company offers, they also help customers out with a wide variety of commercial and residential roofing services. This includes being one of the areas leading commercial flat and sloped roof repair specialists. That includes everything from replacing shingle & roofing tile to coating a low or no-sloped roof with outstanding Prokol or other flat roof specialty products. He added that they are also specialists when it comes to installing or repairing tin, slate, and copper roofs and do all types of residential roof repair and whole roof replacements.

Both residential and commercial customers of the company have not only been impressed with the warranties that this company backs their roofing products and workmanship with but also with the overall roofing experience this contractor has provided for them. Dee Marie stated, "Mike and his crew did an amazing job on our roof. They showed up on time and did the job in the timeframe specified. No surprises. Just got the job done right. Thanks so much!" Attila @ ATA Wolf Corp proclaimed, "Mike and his team are consummate professionals. We have done many large projects together successfully. He's knowledgeable of the latest industry innovations while maintaining a firm grip on the time-tested old-world techniques that slate and tile roofs demand. His positive attitude makes him a pleasure to have on the job site."
