MySwegway.com, a business located in Edinburgh, UK, has announced the release of the latest top of the line Swegways to meet the growing demands for quality and affordable self-balancing electronic scooters. According to Google search data, the self-balancing scooter has been one of the best-selling gadgets in recent months and is now taking the US and UK by storm, with trends suggesting it might just be one of the top gift ideas this coming holiday season.

"Sweg boards are selling like hotcakes and many retailers are selling out as soon as they're getting new stock in. So if you are wanting a balance board in time for Christmas, for yourself or as a present, it is best to buy one early or you may miss out," says Aaron Hill from MySwegway.com. "Quite possibly the biggest selling point for this must-have gadget is its affordability, as it is priced at around $350 in the US and £250 in the UK. With several celebrities using and promoting it on social media, many people have been eager to try and experience riding it," he added.

MySwegway also showcase several models and colours for their customers, to have a more personalised experience. They also provide reviews and video tutorials on their website, so customers will have a guide on which model and specification will best fit their needs.

Aaron also urges potential customers to frequently visit their website for the latest news and trends regarding popular swegway boards and self-balancing scooters as well as finding deals and stock availability. Customers can contact them by calling +44 (0)7 814010163 or email them at contact@myswegway.com. Their company website is <http://www.myswegway.com>.
