SALT LAKE CITY?Professional genealogy company Origins International (D.B.A. Origins Genealogy) released a report that details the best online resources for genealogy researchers. The analysis explores the primary free websites available to genealogists, as well as paid genealogy services.

Origins Genealogy provides professional genealogy services for its customers, but ?we also recognize that a lot of folks want to do their own family tree research,? says co-founder Jenny Wallentine. To that end, the company compiled its curated list of the best free and paid genealogy websites, with a brief explanation of the pros and cons of each website chosen to be featured.

Some of the featured websites, such as Ancestry.com, are widely-known, yet made the list because of their popularity, the scope of their databases, or for other reasons. Other featured genealogy websites are more obscure, yet offer niche genealogical opportunities.

?We wanted to give genealogists the widest-possible list of tools they can use,? Wallentine says of the report, which can be read at <https://originsintl.com/best-genealogy-websites/>.
