

Tree Service Experts Riverside Creates and Implements a Tree Protection Plan Ahead of a Road Construction Project

September 08, 2021

September 08, 2021 -
Riverside, California ? When Mr Wallace learned that the Riverside City government had approved a road construction project, he knew that his trees would no longer be safe. He understood that heavy construction machines would be turning near his trees and this would lead to tree damage and even tree death. To protect his trees and ensure they survived the construction project, Wallace decided to work with Tree Service Experts Riverside on tree protection plans.

?It was amazing to watch them work,? said Wallace after the protection plans had been implemented. ?The team knew exactly what it was doing. It is like they have offered a service like this in the past. They left here this morning. And from the look of the work they did, it is very clear that these trees will survive the heavy machines that are coming to start the road work next week.?

Our reporters managed to find Tree Service Experts Riverside CEO and interview him on the tree protection project. The CEO had the following to say, ?The main part of a tree that is affected by heavy machinery is the roots. When the heavy machines pass by the tree several times, they may kill the roots, which may, in turn, kill the tree. For this reason, the major part we put a lot of focus on is the tree?s anchoring points ? that is, the tree roots.?
