Brooklyn - Family law is typically centered around those times which test marriage partners and their children. Divorce, child custody, division of assets, spousal support, visitation, and child support; all can be extremely charged issues and can impact everyone involved, both emotionally and financially. When feelings are involved, it is typically difficult for couples to think plainly about the implications of their immediate actions and decisions throughout a divorce.

Juan Luciano, Esq., a skilled divorce lawyer attorney in Brooklyn, understands his function as the emotional, financial, and legal representative for his clients. There is frequently a fine line in between being a support system for his clients, keeping continuous communication between couples as non-confrontational as possible, and yet understanding when to bring out the aggressive measures needed to help make sure that his client's rights and best results are being totally represented.

"Most of the time, I'm working with clients who are going through an extremely painful and vulnerable time.

During this difficult time, they must make important choices that will impact them and their children for years to come," discussed the divorce lawyer. "Although I realize that I can't eliminate the pain they are feeling, I can help make these essential choices. The important decisions must be made while keeping the client's emotional comfort and dignity at the forefront of our interactions. While we attempt to keep open lines of interaction and cooperation with the other partner, there are some circumstances when this is just not possible or productive, and we have to depend on more aggressive techniques. I follow the client's leads whenever I can, however, I also need to be honest with them. It is a fine line that we must walk as lawyers."

Mr. Luciano is a firm believer in the power of respect and empathy and credits his success to his willingness to treat his family law clients with sensitivity. While cooperative techniques are consistently his first go-to approach, he also knows there are times when cooperation is no longer fruitful. Because of this, Mr. Luciano continues to garner positive reviews from his clients:

Stroman Fortune from Brooklyn says: "Although the dissolution of my marriage was complex and lengthy, I did not doubt that hiring Juan was the best choice. From the beginning, he was compassionate, conscientious, and demonstrated comprehensive knowledge and understanding of New York divorce law. Immediately I knew I made a terrific choice. From child custody to support, child visitation, alimony, and much more, he was helpful every step of the way. Every phone call was returned without delay, every email message returned straight away, every communication was spot on. No one wants to get divorced, but if you must, Juan Luciano is the best lawyer you can hire. His service is outstanding."

Since divorce often sets the stage for the rest of a person's life, Juan Luciano works hard to bring legal skill and his years of experience to secure the very best outcome for each client he represents. Although an individual may feel upset and grief-stricken during the proceedings, Mr. Luciano understands that life does go on after a divorce, and the choices made in the middle of the turmoil will color the future for the law firm's customers. Mr. Luciano tries to provide a level of clear-mindedness during those moments when his clients may not be able to think clearly.

With a skilled divorce lawyer attorney guiding them, a challenging situation can frequently be adeptly negotiated, thus enabling each partner to reach some common ground. Mr. Luciano thinks that getting the right representation can make a big difference in the cooperation and tone between partners during a divorce.
