

Crestview Bankruptcy Lawyers Highlight Recent Spike in Collection Activities

Crestview, Fla ? During the pandemic, many creditors suspended collection efforts, and even the court systems saw a significant decrease in the number of lawsuits filed by collection and credit card companies to include moratoriums on foreclosures. However, local bankruptcy attorneys, Lewis and Jurnovoy, have noted a recent increase in collection activities over the last few weeks. From credit card lawsuits for even small dollar amounts to a continuation of foreclosures, collection companies, and debt buyers seem to be getting back to business as normal.

Quite frequently, individuals won't realize that they need debt relief assistance until they are drowning in debt. According to Lewis and Jurnovoy, some of the possible debt warning signs to keep in mind are as follows: if one is missing payments (mortgage, credit card, etc.), getting telephone calls or debt collection letters, or constantly needing to borrow money and taking out more loans. If one is experiencing any of the previously mentioned issues, then it's time to consider legal advice.

?You shouldn't have to go through this alone if you're having financial problems... give us a call, let us set you up with an appointment and see what's going on and see what we can do to try and steer you in the right direction to help you get out of debt and to move forward,? stated Martin Lewis in a recent segment of their live call-in show, ?Bankruptcy Hour.?
