Sydney, NSW - Future Electric Services has been a family-owned and operated company for over five years now. They are dedicated to building trust with customers, providing them anything they need in terms of repairs or maintenance services, from air conditioning systems all the way down to individual appliance troubleshooting.

The past few years have made several critical changes to ensure that they could fulfil this vision, including streamlining their staff, expanding their area of service, and finally adding newly-developed technology to their fleet. The company has trained professionals so their clients can be assured that they have an experienced electrician on standby. No job is too big or small, and each one will get the same high level of care as any other. In the end, they try to prove that no other company out there can offer the same quality of service as them.

The company was founded in 2016 by Moris Khouzam and has kept growing every year since. At Future Electric Services, they make sure to offer excellent customer service. Their friendly approach is one of the reasons why so many people in Sydney choose them as their electrical services company. Whether it's commercial or residential work that needs doing- whether anything from repairing air conditioning systems and installing new ones all way down through providing general maintenance -anyone can trust their staff to get a top-quality job done and at competitive prices.

They specialise in a wide range of services, including Commercial electrical services, Electrical repairs, Domestic electrical services, Fault finding, Electricity for renovations, Lights, Electrical installations, Power points, Electrical maintenance and Air conditioning. They have a team of fully licensed electricians who specialise in after-hours emergency electrical services. They are available for residential and commercial properties alike, ensuring that no matter the time a client needs their help or expertise, they will be there to answer any calls - 24 hours a day. All of their services are available around the whole area of Sydney.
