Clean Group Melbourne Integrates Touchpoint Sanitation As Part Of Their Commercial Cleaning Services

September 27, 2021

Melbourne, Victoria - September 27, 2021 -
Melbourne, VIC based Clean Group Melbourne is pleased to announce that they have recently integrated touchpoint sanitation as part of their commercial cleaning services. This is in line with their goal of providing the best commercial cleaning Melbourne residents can experience.

Touchpoint sanitation is a deep cleaning process that removes the germs and viruses that linger on objects that are commonly used by members of the public, such as doorknobs, stair rails, counters, elevator buttons, switches, handles, levers and more. Clean Group Melbourne explains that a common janitorial cleaning service cleans visible dirt and dust ? but fails to remove germs and viruses that cannot be seen by the naked eye. This is the reason why they have decided to include touchpoint sanitation as part of their commercial cleaning package, because it can kill 99.9% of harmful germs and bacteria.

According to certain studies, a person touches about 300 surfaces every 30 minutes. This is one of the reasons why viruses like Covid-19 can easily spread from one place to another. Touchpoint sanitation aims to solve this problem by sanitising, disinfecting and deodorising objects that are frequently touched. Experts recommend conducting regular touchpoint cleaning to keep public spaces Covid-19 free. Touchpoint sanitation, however, is a complex process that cannot easily be done by people with no prior knowledge and experience in professional cleaning. It requires the use of strong disinfectants and other chemicals, as well as modern equipment and tools, to ensure total sanitation. Fortunately, Clean Group Melbourne decided to include touchpoint sanitation as part of their professional commercial cleaning service.

The company explains that several studies have already proven that germs and viruses can easily spread through physical touch. They add that strong and effective cleansers are needed for this purpose, and touchpoint sanitation is the best way to keep public or communal spaces Covid-19 free.

In addition to this, touchpoint sanitation has been employed in hospitals all over the world because health care professionals understand the importance of preventing the spread of disease from one patient to another. The same idea applies to workplaces and commercial spaces. Since these areas are usually frequented by a lot of people, it is important to make sure they are safe from germs and viruses. Clean Group Melbourne ensures that touchpoint sanitation is included as part of their commercial cleaning services to provide the best result for their clients.

Clean Group Melbourne is a professional deep cleaning provider that offers a top-tier service to residential and commercial property owners in Melbourne and the surrounding areas.
