October 15, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Matthew Miglin has announced a new mentor service that is designed to help contractors and business owners to acquire new clients through multi-channel online resources. Miglin, as president of Chapelwood Home Services, has shown a proven track record for increasing production and profits over the years. He credits his time serving in the United States Marine Corps during Operation Desert Storm as a major contributor of his leadership skills.

He states that, "Most business owners focus on the work they have to get done today, but if they are not every day, all the time focusing on acquiring new clients, then they are always one month from going out of business." The service is designed to show marketers where they are going wrong and how they can turn around their marketing strategies to promote business growth. Miglin points to his years of experience in his field, and is now offering to assist entrepreneurs who may not have a strong marketing strategy in place to gain new clients.

Matthew Miglin is the CEO of Voice of Prosperity, LLC, through which he assists entrepreneurs with building wealth through coaching and consulting services. Over the years, he has presented seminars for individuals and businesses, in addition to various organizations and government agencies, and is a Certified Seminar Leader through the American Seminar Leaders Association.

He states that he has the capability and experience to assist business owners and marketers with increasing their profits and ensuring business success. "My goal is to assist clients every day in keeping their phones ringing," he says.

Numerous studies over the years have shown that marketing experts, such as Miglin, can help businesses to accelerate their business success, getting them to their goals faster.
