Ellicott City, MD ? Heil Plumbing, a local plumber in Ellicott City, MD, donated a fountain to Centennial Park in Howard County. The park, according to the county website, is 337 acres with "a spectacular 54-acre man-made lake, which is stocked by the State Department of Fisheries. You can walk, run or bike the 2.6-mile paved pathway that encircles the lake or the 7.3 miles of interconnecting paved pathway that includes links to surrounding neighborhoods.? Park-goers can also see many different types of wildlife when visiting the park, including turtles, beavers, foxes, and white-tailed deer.

As a family-owned and local business, Heil Plumbing knows the importance of having clean water readily available to both the two and four-legged inhabitants in the area and wanted to provide an all-in-one fountain that could provide water to both humans and pets. With that in mind, the fountain includes a dog watering station, bottle filler, and two spouts of differing heights to ensure that all individuals can access water. The team members at Heil stated that it was an honor to give back to their community and hope the fountain will be used by all who visit the park.

Supporting their neighbors for more than 40 years as a trusted commercial plumber in Ellicott City, the staff at Heil Plumbing also volunteered their time during the pandemic this time last year and collected food donations for the front-line healthcare workers and delivered hard-to-find supplies like toilet paper and paper towels to the homebound and elderly living in their city.

Heil Plumbing is dedicated to offering only the highest quality residential and commercial services to residents in Ellicott City, Columbia, Fulton, Laurel, and the surrounding areas.
