Nashville, Tennessee ? After using an inexperienced team to trim their trees, Jacob's family started noticing a lot of suckers on their trees. To save the trees from the strain that the suckers caused, the family called Nashville Tree Experts to help solve the problem.

Speaking after handling the sucker removal procedure, the company?s head of field operations had the following to say, ?Suckers are a tree?s attempt to grow more branches. This is often in response to some kind of injury. For example, if the roots of a tree are damaged, the suckers tend to grow from the base of the tree. if suckers grow higher up on the tree trunk, they are often called water sprouts, and they are generally a result of an improperly conducted tree trimming or tree pruning procedure. The best way to get rid of the suckers is to invest in professional pruning.?

Nashville Tree Experts noted that tree suckers have to be removed as soon as they appear. The chief of field operations noted, ?To get rid of tree suckers completely, you must remove them when they are young and their tender skin has not turned to bark. This is because when you prune a large, woody sucker, you may create a wound that could easily prompt the tree to grown more suckers.?

Nashville Tree Experts is a company that offers more services than just sucker pruning. The company?s tree trimming team Nashville is experienced enough to handle tree trimming for all types of tree species. The company has been helping homeowners in the city of Nashville ? and neighborhoods like Hendersonville, Gallatin, Nolensville, Smyrna, Murfreesboro, Lebanon, and Mount Juliet ? with tree removals, stump removals, and tree emergencies.

?Our company receives a lot of praise from previous customers for its ability to respond quickly to tree service requests,? said the company?s CEO. ?When it comes to normal non-risky tree service procedures, we respond on the same day they are ordered. When it comes to risky emergency tree service Nashville procedures, our emergency team responds in less than an hour. What most people may not know is that we operate on a 24/7 basis when it comes to emergencies ? call us at any time of the day or night and we will be at the emergency site in less than 60 minutes.?
