Nashville, Tennessee ? When branches started falling from Morris?s 100-foot white pine, he expected this problem to go away eventually. However, when the problem failed to stop, he decided to call a professional from Tree Service Experts Nashville to take a look at the tree.

?Initially, it was just the small branches falling on my garage,? said Morris. ?This, however, changed over time and large branches started dropping. This was when I realized something had to be done. When I invited a professional for analysis and estimate, he went up the tree, checked all the branches, and then told me that the estimate would be 100% free ? this impressed me. He told me that tree pruning would be necessary to get rid of all the damaged branches on my tree and create room for new, healthy branches. The tree trimming team Nashville arrived here this morning, pruned the tree, and carried the waste with them.?

?Sometimes, trees may suffer from broken branches or diseased limbs,? said the company?s chief of field operations. The branches can keep detaching randomly from the tree crown and falling on your property. This not only places the utilities in harm's way but also puts you at the risk of suffering injuries. Removing these branches through tree pruning is the easiest way to fix the problem of falling branches.
