Cherry Hill, NJ - Medical experts understand substance use disorder as a mental health condition with no quick fix. However, the disease of addiction can be overcome in time through a holistic approach that includes caring support, and effective treatment programs. The first rehab that a person finds may not be the one that helps them to overcome addiction for good, but at exceptional treatment centers like Legacy Healing Center, long-term recovery can be achieved and a life of enjoyment and satisfaction fully realized.

Robbin W, a recent client of Legacy Healing Center in Cherry Hill, NJ, had been battling addiction for 11 years before finally finding long-term sobriety. He had tried to get treatment at two other rehabs before finding the Legacy Healing Center family.

In a 5-star Google review, Robbin said, "I had miserably failed prior to my arrival [at] Cherry Hill with my alcohol recovery, but with the care, compassion, and knowledge of the staff, techs, owners, and clients, I learned to become whole for the first time in my life!"

Substance use disorder is classified as a chronic, relapsing disease and sometimes that means a person may go through rehab multiple times before finding an addiction treatment plan and support community that will help them to rediscover themselves and attain lasting recovery. The addiction treatment center in Cherry Hill was able to give Robbin the tools and compassionate support he needed to overcome his addiction.

Robbin went further to say, "once you go to Legacy Healing Center, they never forget about you. Their genuine [care] and family atmosphere is contagious!" Legacy Healing Center understands how important it is for a person in recovery to feel accepted, understood, and cared for.

Providing ample, family-like support both during early recovery and into long-term recovery is a key ingredient for lasting success. "Everyone that works there made me feel like family and still do", Robbin added about the support that he felt while he was at the Cherry Hill rehab.

Robbin had been sober for 114 days from the time that he wrote his 5-star review. He emphasized how his life has never been better. Through Legacy Healing Center's aftercare programs, Robbin and other clients continue to benefit from the guidance and support the behavioral health center offers.
