Bronx - Family law is often centered around the point in times that challenge a couple and their family. Divorce, custody, division of property, spousal support, visitation, and child support; can be highly charged issues that may affect everyone involved, both emotionally and financially. When strong feelings are involved, it is frequently tough for couples to think clearly about the consequences of their actions and decisions during a divorce.

Juan Luciano, Esq., a knowledgeable divorce lawyer in the Bronx, understands his function as the financial, emotional, and legal representative for his clients. There is frequently a fine line in between being a support system for his clients, keeping ongoing keeping open communication lines between partners, and yet understanding when to use the aggressive measures needed to make sure that his client's rights and best results are being fully represented.

"Most of the time, I'm working with clients who are going through a very painful and vulnerable time. At this difficult time, they are required to make important choices that will impact them and their children for several years to come," explained the divorce lawyer. "Although I realize that I can't take away the discomfort they are feeling, I can help make these essential choices. The important decisions should be made while keeping the client's emotional comfort as well as their dignity at the forefront of our discussions. While we try to keep open lines of interaction and cooperation with the other partner, there are some instances when this is not possible or efficient, and we have to depend on more aggressive techniques. I try to take my cue from the client whenever I can, however, I also need to be honest with the client. It is a fine line that we have to walk as lawyers."

Mr. Luciano is a firm believer in the power of respect and empathy and credits his success to his ability to treat his clients with a level of sensitivity. While cooperative methods are consistently his very first go-to approach, he understands there are times when cooperation is no longer fruitful. Because of this, Mr. Luciano continues to garner favorable reviews from his clients.

Deondre Ondricka from the Bronx says: "I was treated so well by everyone from this firm. They helped me with my divorce. This was a stressful time for me. I did not know what to do nor what options were available. They helped me organize everything and explained everything in terms that made sense. Things are now better and I got the result I wanted. I recommend this firm to anyone needing a divorce lawyer here in the Bronx."

Because divorce frequently sets the stage for the rest of a person's life, Juan Luciano works hard to bring legal skills and years of experience to secure the best result for each client he represents. Although a person may not feel any sense of optimism during the proceedings, Mr. Luciano comprehends that life does go on after a divorce, and the decisions made in the middle of the turmoil will color the future for the law firm's customers. Mr. Luciano tries to supply a level of clear-mindedness at a time when his family law clients might not have the ability to think clearly.

With a knowledgeable divorce lawyer navigating the way, a tough situation can frequently be adeptly negotiated, thus making it possible for each party to reach some common ground. Mr. Luciano thinks that getting the right representation can make a big difference in both the tone and cooperation between parties throughout a divorce.
