Home Instead Romford, Hornchurch, Rainham & Dagenham, a home care provider based in Romford, UK, is proud to announce that they have received an outstanding rating following an inspection by the Care Quality Commission (CQC).

The outstanding home care services rating from the independent regulatory body was for the tailor-fitted in-home services provided by Home Instead Romford, Hornchurch, Rainham & Dagenham, for having the capability to meet an assorted range of client needs.

“To get a CQC outstanding rating is an absolute honour,” says Kiran Agrawal, owner of Home Instead. “Our caregivers have certainly been put through their paces during the pandemic – dealing with PPE and reassuring clients at this worrying time are just two challenges that they’ve had to contend with. I can’t wait to continue leading our fantastic team and providing quality care across Romford and surrounding areas. Everyone should have the choice to stay living at home, and I’m delighted to make that a reality for older people in the local community.”

It is important to note that only about four percent of home care providers are given an outstanding rating and the above-mentioned outstanding rating was the only one covering both Havering and Barking and Dagenham. It was a well-deserved praise because of Home Instead's strong support for caregivers, giving recognition for their accomplishments, offering them the best possible training, and empowering them to provide quality care.

The CQC report also praised the home care provider's commitment to ensuring the appropriate match between clients and caregivers, based on the similarity of their interests, which is vital in creating a deep and real companionship. Families of their clients were truly amazed at how well their loved ones were enjoying their conversations and interactions with their caregiver.

In addition, Home Instead has launched two initiatives designed to keep the elderly engaged. One is providing activity books with puzzles while the other is bringing clients to the theatre to watch a show designed to be dementia-friendly. The CQC also praised the deep relationship Home Instead develops with its staff and how well they introduce caregivers to the business.

Home Instead Romford, Hornchurch, Rainham & Dagenham offers various kinds of services as part of its elderly home care services. These include: home care services. They can provide: companionship, overnight care, respite care, private in-home care, home help and housekeeping, personal care, dementia care, and live-in care. As well as specialist care such as Parkinson's and end of life care.

First, they offer professional companion care, helping the elderly continue to live an exciting life, in the warmth and comfort of their own home. Companionship is often desired by the elderly, whether they are currently living alone or their loved one has recently passed away and are finding it difficult to adjust.
