October 18, 2021 -
Wilmington, North Carolina based Bryter Restoration of Wilmington is pleased to share that everyone in their community may now access the company?s comprehensive water damage cleanup services. Bryter Restoration was formed after many instances of water damage restoration work were required in the Carolinas following storms and hurricanes over the last 15 years. Their team has been serving the families of Wilmington and the Carolinas to the best of their ability since.

John Bryter of Bryter Restoration of Wilmington says, ?Most people are unaware of how serious water damage can be. Even in cases where there might just be a little bit of water damage on your drywall or on your ceiling, your property can be in a lot of danger. So, in cases where you might have experienced a flood or a more serious surge of water damage, you need to make sure that you act fast. Bryter Restoration has experience dealing with these kinds of problems, such as cleaning up after hurricanes and floods, and we are the best at what we do.?

Bryter Restoration of Wilmington?s range of water damage clean-up services include repairing cosmetic and structural damage; taking care of bacterial mold growth and damage; dealing with damaged electrical systems and appliances; and more. The company is available 24 hours a day, seven days a week and accepts most major insurance providers, ensuring that everyone can take advantage of their services. Bryter Restoration of Wilmington also provides free estimates for water restoration services.

Bryter says, ?We cannot emphasize deeply enough how important it is for you to act fast. In fact, if you want to minimize the amount of water damage restoration you will eventually have to do, you need to make sure that you get in touch with a water damage cleanup professional within the first 24 hours. The longer you let the damage sit, the worse the situation will get ? and the more you will have to spend to restore and renovate your home.?

According to Bryter Restoration of Wilmington, the first course of action should be to make sure that everyone is safe. Once everyone?s safety has been ensured, it is important to document the damage and then call in a water damage restoration service. Taking photos and videos of the damaged home is critical, especially in cases where an insurance claim is to be filed. If repairs are made before the extent of damage is properly documented, this can potentially decrease how much insurance coverage will be provided.

The services provided by Bryter Restoration of Wilmington have earned the company a lot of praise from their local community. On the Google platform, the water damage cleanup company maintains a perfect 5-Star rating. Casey Rodeo writes in their review, ?There was a toilet that leaked during the day and flooded downstairs. Called Bryter, and they came straight away for cleanup. Excellent!?

Meanwhile, another review shares, ?My son alerted me that he thought he had black mold in his apartment. I called this company for mold remediation, and I think they could hear the urgency in my voice because someone came out the same day to inspect the property. He immediately let me know what was going on and what we needed to do to resolve the issue. They came out and completely cleaned the apartment and explained to my son everything they were doing. They took the time to educate him. They came when they said they were coming and completed the work in a timely and professional manner. I appreciate the sense of urgency they took to address the situation. I will definitely be calling them back for work in my home and will refer them to my friends and family. Thank you so much.?

In addition to providing their services to the city of Wilmington, Bryter Restoration of Wilmington also works with communities in the surrounding cities, such as Wrightsville Beach NC, Myrtle Beach SC, Moorehead City NC, Carolina Beach NC and more.
