October 20, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

West Hollywood, California based Audio Video Experts has launched a full suite of home technology services, designed to give Orange County homeowners with full automation of many systems. The company has been providing home theater installations for more than 10 years. Jason Harrison, spokesperson for the company, states, "Home automation is just the way to go these days. I mean, everyone is getting on board because there are so many benefits."

Jason Harrison explains that along with lighting control, temperature, spa and pool features, and even home theaters can be completely automated. Consumers can set lighting levels for their rooms, turning them all on or off with just the press of a button, as opposed to having multiple switches on the walls. A keypad is installed that controls each room, and it works similarly for temperature and home theater control.

"We can make it so that virtually everything you do in your home in Orange County is done with the push of a single button," states Harrison. "These really are the homes of the future, and we're ready to bring yours up to date."

Climate control can be used to set heating or cooling equipment, while homeowners are away, to lower levels to conserve energy. Harrison points out that they often recommend that customers also integrate their home theater systems into their home automation. This enables homeowners to turn on their favorite movie or television show, play their favorite music, and even spread that music over several rooms at the same time, all with the push of one button.

Jason Harrison states that adding the pool or spa to the mix is also a good idea. "You can literally control the temperature of your swimming pool or hot tub with your smartphone," he adds. Many homeowners use this option to have their hot tub heated and ready when they arrive home from work, or heating up the pool on their way home for the weekend.

Those who are interested in learning more about the home automation options that the company offers can visit them at their L.A. showroom or browse their official website for more information.
