A Family Owned Facility in Tampa Florida Gets National Recognition

Turning Point of Tampa is a family-owned facility focused on helping those who want to recover from alcohol addiction, drug addiction, or a dual diagnosis such as an eating disorder and substance abuse.

Successful patients who have lasting recovery from drug or alcohol addiction and eating disorders is how this addiction treatment center is known.

Turning Point of Tampa was informed by a couple from Germany who was familiar with their addiction treatment programs, that they heard "Turning Point of Tampa" on a German news program.

Great damage to US companies: the expensive addiction of workers

Correspondent Julia Kastein wrote the article "Great damage to US companies: the expensive addiction of workers" after listening to "The Point is Recovery" podcast. The article is featured under the business section, world economy and discusses the addiction problem in the United States.

Taggeschau picked up a recent podcast episode. Episode 10 with Mark Davis, LCSW. This podcast was focused on Employee Assistance Programs.

"Sometimes the affected colleague is on the cover of the employee magazine: as employee of the month. I have treated such people with serious addiction problems," says the therapist. Mark offered great information about the actual toll and costs that addiction has on the workforce in the United States.

The Taggeschau news report also mentions host Ashley Hall Neal and her experience working in the hospitality industry while abusing drugs & alcohol. Ashley has now been sober 15 years.

Turning Point of Tampa on the Number One News Program in Germany

"Learning that Turning Point is featured online in Germany is fantastic," said Robin Piper, CEO. "The topic of Employee Assistance Programs is vital to the US workforce, and it is amazing how Ashley's story touches people all over the globe."

"Taggeschau," translated in English means "Daily News" and the Taggeschau news program is the number one news program in Germany. Taggeschau news program is also streamed worldwide online.
