October 25, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Lexington, Kentucky ? On Monday, Tree Service Experts Lexington brought down a 180 feet cedar tree, helping a homeowner avoid spending a fortune on property repair costs. According to Mr. Jackson Miles, the tree had been dead for about 6 months. The homeowner, however, had missed the tree because he rarely visits his rental properties.

?When our representative at the booking office picked Jackson?s phone at around 6 pm,? said the Tree Service Experts Lexington CEO, ?he could tell the homeowner had a tree that needed immediate attention. Our Lexington tree removal team decided to visit Jackson?s home and assess the situation that same evening. The team determined that the tree had suffered extreme internal decay, making its structure extremely weak. A strong wind could have broken the tree, causing a lot of property damage. To help Jackson avoid spending money on repairs, the team decided to handle the tree removal immediately.?

Tree Service Experts Lexington is a company that has made a name for itself by handling emergency tree services on a 24/7 basis. According to the company?s CEO, Jackson?s decaying tree qualified as a potential safety risk and removal had to be carried out immediately.

"By the time we finished bringing our machines to the worksite," said the company's chief of field operations, "it was already 7 pm. However, we were very dedicated to helping Jackson save his rental property."

The company's team of tree cutting professionals in Lexington worked non-stop for 3 hours, finally managing to bring the tree down safely at around 10 PM. The company spent an extra hour grinding the tree stump and collecting the waste generated by the entire procedure.

"That night," the property owner told one of our reporters, "at around 12:30 am, just 1.5 hours after the dangerous tree had been removed, a heavy storm blew through Lexington. If the tree was still standing on my landscape, there is a very high chance that the wind would have broken it. Right now, as I am talking to you guys, I would be planning a property repair procedure worth thousands of dollars."

"What makes me feel like the company offered me a special treatment," added Jackson Miles, "is the fact that they charged me a very affordable fee. I was expecting the tree removal cost to double because the team was working in the middle of the night. The company, however, decided to keep the overall cost in a range that I could easily afford."

Jackson Mile's tree removal procedure is not the first project that Tree Service Experts Lexington has handled in the middle of the night. According to the Tree Service Experts Lexington CEO, last week but one, the company worked two consecutive nights to remove dangerously leaning trees from two different residential properties.

"Jackson's case is unique as the property owner failed to notice the dead tree after being away for too long," said the company's CEO, "However, it is impossible to control when tree emergencies show up on our landscapes. A homeowner could be having dinner with his family and a lightning strike may burn through one of his trees, leaving it relying on neighboring trees for stability. In such a circumstance, quick action will have to be taken to keep the tree from dropping on the swimming pool, powerlines, or house nearby. This is why we keep our phone line open on a 24/7 basis. If such a homeowner calls us, we will be on his landscape in less than an hour."

Tree Service Experts Lexington base of operation sits at 2285 Executive Dr, Lexington, KY 40505, United States. The company, however, can be contacted via +1 859-517-4272 and sales@thelocaltreeexpert.com.
