October 26, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Excel Restoration Service Inc., a company based in McHenry, IL, is happy to announce that they are offering water damage restoration Glenview IL and surrounding communities can depend on. There are a number of factors that make their services stand out from other similar services. These include: 24/7 availability; fast response time; fully-detailed estimates; a competent and thorough evaluation; competent and properly equipped technicians; complete coordination with the client's insurance company; and personal contact to keep the homeowner up to date regarding the status of the project.

Justin Parat, owner of Excel Restoration Service, says, "Water damage may occur in any sort of structure, from a family house to a business office. Water damage is frequently caused by an accident or a burst pipe, but it can also be caused by a storm or flood. Water damage may be extremely damaging since it can not only harm your building's walls, floors, and ceilings, causing hazardous mold development, but it can also cause irreversible structural damage if not addressed promptly. That is why it is important to call a professional Glenview restoration company that is knowledgeable about what to do in order to get the best results in terms of fixing existing water damage and preventing future water damage."

Excel Restoration Service employs cutting edge technology in restoring water damaged homes in Glenview. The water damage restoration services they provide is made up of: emergency water extraction; drying of structures; cleaning and sealing of contaminated ducting; carpet, upholstery, and drapery drying; mold removal; and additional services as needed. They use advanced technology to detect if there is any hidden moisture and then extract it fast. This will result into fully dried affected areas and the complete cleaning of the home and belongings that have been affected by water. They also employ advanced sanitizing and deodorizing chemicals to get rid of any lingering odors and/or prevent mold growth in the future.

Glenview is found in Cook County, Illinois, is situated 16 miles northwest of Chicago, and is part of the Chicago Metropolitan Area. It has its own fair share of storms, which means homes and other properties in Glenview may get water damaged due to flooding from storms. There is also the risk of flooding from broken pipes. The professionals from Excel Restoration Service will respond promptly to calls from homeowners and other property owners. They will employ innovative methods and use top-of-the-line equipment to extract water as quickly as possible. In addition, they will also document the drying process to make sure that all of the client's belongings and parts of the home get completely dry and that these can be used as precise evidence for an insurance claim.

Meanwhile, if mold has started to grow in the property due to the presence of the humid environment, Excel Restoration Service can also provide mold remediation. They can offer a full mold removal process that will effectively treat, get rid, and prevent mold growth in the future. Their professionals, who have the appropriate certification, will completely inspect the areas and test for black mold removal. They offer safe and professional mold removal for both homes and businesses and they can offer a guarantee that the home or building is protected from the threat of mold. Mold growth in a home due to water damage can result into toxic mold spores getting airborne inside the home and triggering allergies or causing respiratory diseases.
