The Learning Center of South Park, a preschool and childcare center in Orlando, FL, wants to emphasize that their tuition rates are clear and easy to understand, which means there would be no hidden surprises. As a result of the high curriculum and levels of care provided by The Learning Center, many parents find their Orlando daycare rates to be more reasonable than they had expected. In spite of being one of the best preschools in Orlando, their tuition rates are fairly average for preschools in the area. Up-to-date prices will always be displayed in clear and easy-to-understand form on their website.

Helen Batie, Director of The Learning Center of South Park, says, "We believe in bringing out the best in every child. From infants to kindergarten, our Orlando child care programs are designed to help each child reach his or her absolute potential. At our preschool in Orlando, FL, we go above and beyond to make sure each and every child gets individual attention and learns the skills they need for success. Our dedicated teachers deliver fun, hands-on lessons from a high-quality curriculum, that makes learning enjoyable for your child. We value communication, honesty, and a true partnership with our families. We offer daycare, preschool, and VPK programs for ages ranging from infants to 5 years of age. Plus, our classes are small with low child-to-teacher ratios, so all children receive the attentive care they need."

Parents looking to check on daycare costs in Orlando will find that information in easy-to-read format on a particular page on The Learning Center of South Park website. They offer two different programs: Full Time Preschool, which is 5 days a week; and Morning Preschool, which is also 5 days a week. They also offer a Florida Voluntary Pre-Kindergarten (VPK) program, which is available for free to the parents because it is subsidized by the state. They also provide 4C (state subsidy) and NACCRRRA (military subsidy) for eligible families.

Parents who have experienced enrolling their children in The Learning Center of South Park have left highly positive reviews. For example, Debora F. gave them a five-star rating on Facebook and said, "Oh my goodness! My child has been here for the past 2 months. Her life has changed completely. I keep saying this to everyone since she has learned so much and her behavior has improved tremendously. Everything about this place is perfect. Security is amazing, curriculum and also they treat the children with so much love. They teach them with a positive approach to everything. They help them channel their feelings and use their words. I honestly wish I would've given my daughter the opportunity of starting at The Learning Center at a younger age and that they had Kindergarten and all the other grades that follow. Ms. Helen, Mrs. Fio, Mrs. Marlene (her wonderful teacher) and all the other ladies in the staff are just amazing. Thank you so much for all the love, effort, and care you have for my princess.?

The Learning Center of South Park was founded to focus on providing early childhood education, using the High Scope curriculum and the Reggio Emilia Approach for teaching. Their program is based on the concept that the children will have to be active participants in their learning because the surroundings offer many opportunities for discovery and exploration. They hope to encourage the development of physical health, social/emotional skills, language/communication skills, motor skills, cognitive abilities, emergent literacy, and general knowledge. They have a secure and well-equipped playground that offers excellent possibilities for the promotion of free and symbolic play and development of gross motor skills. Furthermore, computer and sporting programs provide additional services.
