Andy Fletcher and Walt Bayliss, a well-known SEO tool development and marketing team, are happy to announce the release of their newest product, Video Traffic X, on October 20, 2015. Video Traffic X is an easy-to-use software that installs as a WordPress plug-in that takes article content and develops related original videos virtually instantly. The launch of this software has the potential to revolutionize how SEO professionals and video marketers handle video creation and distribution for their websites.

The way videos have been created prior to the development of this powerful software was expensive and time-consuming. Entrepreneurs first had to pay developers to make videos with content relevant to their websites, wait for them to be delivered (often with a hefty fee), and then begin the laborious process of optimizing them for search engines, submitting them, and ranking them. With Video Traffic X, all of this can be done simply by pushing a button from within WordPress. The plug-in takes images that relate to the webpage's content, compiles them, and adds subtitles and background music to create an eye-catching, unique visual that also attracts website traffic.

Businesses and entrepreneurs interested in acquiring this new, powerful SEO tool can do so through Semantic Mastery, an international team of SEO experts. In addition to gaining Video Traffic X for their toolboxes, web professionals can also gain access to some of Semantic Mastery's most popular SEO educational extras. These include access to private Facebook groups to discuss pressing web development issues and news, and an online course showing how YouTube can be used for SEO, increasing traffic, and automation. See the full suite of Semantic Mastery's Video Traffic X training here.

The Semantic Mastery team is confident in Video Traffic X's ability to change how video is handled by SEO professionals. As SM expert Bradley Benner notes, "There have been a flood of video production tools into the marketplace recently. This is because video is so hot right now. The problem is that creating high-quality videos is only part of the equation. You need to know how to get those videos seen for them to be effective. Video Traffic X solves this by optimizing and ranking videos with almost push-button ease. Couple that with our bonus training and you have a powerful recipe for driving web traffic." Those who purchase this new SEO software can also become a Video Traffic X affiliate, which has the added benefits of being entered into a $20K+ prize pool and 50% recurring lifetime commissions.
