

London Reputation Management Expert Announces Website Redesign

November 05, 2015

November 05, 2015 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Reputation management firm Lucidx announced today that they have launched a redesigned website. The redesigned website, located at <http://lucidx.co.uk>, includes a free website audit feature that allows visitors to enter any website URL to be provided with a snapshot of that website's online reputation along with information on what needs to be done to optimize the website for popular search engines like Google.

The audit offers information about the URL, title/meta tags, an image analysis, heading tags analysis and mobile analysis as well as off-site statistics like social analysis, rankings and link analysis. It also provides an SEO score with information about how to interpret the score, a Google PageRank and much more.

The site also includes a reputation management report, available free for a limited time. The report reveals what people are saying about a business and offers free training on how to create a five-star reputation. Businesses can download a report for free at <http://lucidx.co.uk/reputation-management-london-and-how-to-remove-bad-reviews-in-google-uk/>.

"We felt that it was time to provide a more engaging, user-friendly website for our customers," said Deon

Bryan, the spokesperson for Lucidx. "The new site offers some super-useful tools that provide visitors with information about how to improve their online reputation, and how to rank higher in the search engines."

Most business owners recognize that having a great reputation is critical for them to survive, but finding the time to implement a strong online reputation program is difficult. Deon and his team developed Lucidx to help business owners manage and market their online reputation so that they can focus on running their businesses.

"Online reputation is crucial," Deon said. "Around 90 percent of all consumers check the online reviews of a company before choosing to spend their money with them. Our redesigned website can help businesses make their brand and reputation stronger."

In addition to the free tools, the website also provides tips on how to boost online reputation, including four ways for better reputation management and why it is required for many businesses to succeed.
