

Pianoforte: Parramatta Branch Now Closed

November 05, 2021

November 05, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

November 2021 (Sydney, NSW)?- Pianoforte announces the closing of their store in Parramatta. Their piano store now transferred to Seven Hills and Chatswood. This is a new branch of Pianoforte, but it's been apparent to the company that their original store in Seven Hills and Chatswood have been doing very well. Whatever piano needs of the customer, the company can help with friendly service and expert knowledge.

Two stores in Chatswood and Seven Hills have 30 years of industry experience to get the customer a perfect sound designed just for their mood or style. The store offers a wide variety of pianos for all different types and budgets. Whether the customer needs an upright piano, grand piano or electric one - they'll have what a customer is looking for at prices that fit their budget. If second hand is more up for the customer's alley, then the company got those too. The company offers tuning, regulation and repairs to ensure that they get the most out of every piano they sell.

Both branches of Pianoforte have options such as finance (with up to 49-month plans) and rent to buy deals. Several people want their dream piano and don't want to sacrifice quality or preferred functions for the price. That's why the company decided to start offering finance to help people bridge their upfront payment over a term. This way, everyone can afford their piano and start creating music straight away.

Pianoforte has experienced staff on board to get the process started and will be able to show customers exactly what they need. If they can't find it at their store, then they'll find it for them. They strive to give the best quality service in every step of the buying process - whether it's gearing someone up for playing or tuning a piano, they'll make sure everything feels and sounds amazing. Pianoforte is a family-owned company that has been around for years now. The experience is known for providing customers with the best sound they can and customer service that keeps people coming back to them again and again.
