Dallas, TX - November 09, 2021 -
Chastin J Miles, author of "The Real Before The Estate: What I wish I knew before I started real estate? has released his book to the public. He knows that when starting out as a real estate agent, there are many challenges agents come across. He wants to share his experiences so that others may learn from them and be successful in real estate as well.

The book teaches readers how to succeed in real estate by giving agents practical knowledge and step-by-step processes on how to get started and actually succeed in the real estate world. It took him over six years of making mistakes, interacting with industry leaders, and making tough decisions to acquire this knowledge. The goal of this information is for it to be used as a blueprint for success in realtors lives and real estate business.

Chastin J Miles writes about his experiences so that other real estate agents don't have to go through all the same pain he did when starting out in this field. With humor, insight, and honesty Chastin doesn't hold back. "Working as a real estate agent is not as easy as people think it is. Television has made everything seem super cool and fun. Although it can be a rewarding career, it turned out to be the complete opposite of what I expected," Chastin says.

"If I had the knowledge I have now, when I started, I would be very far in my career. But I don't regret anything; through years of experience, I have managed to reach the peak of my career," states Miles.
