Arrowhead Clinic Explains How To Report An Injury After A Car Accident in Georgia

November 10, 2021

Peachtree City, Georgia - November 10, 2021 -
Arrowhead Clinic has been the leading provider of chiropractic care for accident injury victims in Georgia for over 40 years. They have the best chiropractors who care for accident victims and understand their pain and suffering. ?Anybody injured in a motor vehicle accident deserves the best chiropractic accident injury treatment in Georgia,? says Dr. Summer Turner.

The top Georgia car accident chiropractor suggests that victims should file an accident report and a personal injury claim after receiving medical care to get the right compensation for medical expenses, lost wages, and other damages. Dr. Turner emphasizes the importance of seeing a car accident doctor after a motor vehicle crash for the examination and diagnosis of injuries. The Georgia chiropractor adds that medical intervention is also important for the proper documentation of injuries.

Explaining the basics of a personal injury claim, Dr. Turner says, ?If you have personal injury protection (PIP) or medical coverage on your insurance policy, you can submit an injury claim with your insurance company.? The car accident chiropractor stresses the need to prove the guilt of the responsible person in causing the accident and injuries to the victim, the cost of accident injury treatment, and the victim?s pain and suffering.

The chiropractor explains a few important legal terms, such as liability, negligence, and proximate cause. According to Dr. Turner, ?Accident injury claims are based on the fault of another driver who caused the accident and is liable for the damages.?

The Georgia chiropractor stresses the importance of reporting the accident and filing an injury claim, both of which have different time limits. Dr. Turner suggests reporting accidents that cause injuries to 911.

The leading car accident doctor in Georgia suggests considering a few important things before filing a claim. This includes calling 911 at the accident scene, getting emergency medical attention, gathering documentation for the insurance company, filing a police report, taking pictures of the accident scene, calling the insurance carrier, and contacting an accident lawyer. Dr. Summer Turner further explains the need to keep a copy of all records to lay the groundwork for filing an actual claim.

?Every personal injury case has a statute of limitations that usually starts at the time of the accident,? says Dr. Turner, warning that any delay in filing the lawsuit could prove detrimental to the fight against the responsible party and their insurance company.

The Georgia car accident doctor advises victims to immediately seek medical attention and speak with an auto accident lawyer after an accident. Some medical claims are pretty straightforward, says Dr. Turner, adding, ?The compensation for most soft tissue injuries is a total of your medical bills, your out-of-pocket expenses, lost wages, and a nominal amount for pain and suffering.?

The Georgia chiropractor suggests working with a team of experienced accident lawyers as some injury claims can get complicated and are difficult to settle without professional legal help. Dr. Turner is a leading car accident chiropractor in Georgia who has been providing the best injury treatment for victims. They are experienced in treating soft tissue injuries and musculoskeletal injuries. Some of their patients suffer from broken bones, permanent scarring, head injuries, internal bleeding, or spinal cord injuries.

The Georgia chiropractor cautions against trusting an insurance company when negotiating an accident injury claim. The best Georgia injury attorneys offer free consultations to accident victims to determine if they can help. An accident victim planning to file an insurance claim after an accident can get in touch with Arrowhead Clinic, which can refer their patients to the best personal injury attorneys in Georgia. Arrowhead Clinic offers free consultations and has over 40 years of experience in dealing with auto accident injuries and documenting them for patients? personal injury claims.
