The treatment consists of a highly-trained specialist painlessly inserting very thin needles into specific points in the body. Not only does the location where the needles are placed take on significance but also the depth that the needle is inserted to. Most people associate acupuncture with pain relief but it has the potential to give a patient many other benefits too. Among the benefits that many have a chance to experience by having acupuncture done are reduced back and neck pain & tension along with the relief of hands and arms joint pain. It is a treatment that is also believed to reduce stress and help provide headache relief. He added that allergy and digestive system problem sufferers have even had positive things to say about acupuncture. Non-body problem-related benefits of acupuncture are thought to be enhanced mental awareness, increased energy, and stress relief. The doctor stated that they are always willing to have a patient come in for a free consultation with an acupuncture therapist to see how this popular form of treatment can benefit them.

Dr. Jochen also mentioned that their cupping therapy Beverly Hills treatments should not be easily overlooked either. Although it's a service that is not as widely known as acupuncture, it has long been used in Asia and other areas of the world as an alternative form of therapy. It consists of local suction being created on the skin through the use of specially heated cups. This practice is intended to increase blood flow to the body which is also thought to speed healing. The gentle suction that the cups create can also relieve muscle tension and improve the body's connective tissues in the areas that the cups are placed.
