Arrowhead Clinic has updated its blog with the latest post giving tips on treating neck pain after a car accident in Georgia. Car accidents are traumatic experiences for a victim that can be physically and emotionally damaging. Dr. Roy Vogel is a trusted car accident chiropractor in the accident injury treatment field. The top chiropractor suggests victims should seek medical attention for an immediate diagnosis even if they do not feel injured after an accident. Dr. Vogel warns that in most cases, the victim suffers from neck pain after a car accident as neck muscles can take the brunt force of a crash.

Unless addressed on time, neck pain and stiff neck can worsen and become chronic, which is difficult to deal with. The Georgia car accident doctor cautions against victims ignoring neck sprain or strain, neck fracture, whiplash injury, or severe neck pain. Dr. Vogel is an expert in neck pain treatment. The blog post lists the common neck injuries after a motor accident, putting whiplash on the top of the list. Dr. Vogel advises victims to immediately seek accident injury treatment. The chiropractor explains that sudden movement in an accident can cause damage to the muscles, nerves, or ligaments, which may result in chronic neck pain, memory problems, or long-term headaches.

Soft tissue damage is another form of an auto accident injury, which can cause neck pain, stiffness, tenderness, and reduced range of motion. A victim may also suffer from cuts and lacerations in a car crash, which can damage ligaments and tendons in the neck, explains the leading Georgia chiropractor, suggesting immediate treatment to expedite the recovery process. The blog post advises victims to see an accident doctor, who may recommend heat therapy as a form of rehab therapy to loosen stiff muscles and encourage blood flow with fresh oxygen and nutrients to the soft tissues. This will help relieve pain.

Dr. Roy Vogel warns accident victims not to delay seeing a car accident doctor, saying, ?There's no amount of stretches and at-home remedies that are better than medical treatment from an experienced accident doctor.? The Georgia car accident chiropractor says that even severe injuries might have delayed symptoms. Dr. Vogel explains that any delay in treatment can make the symptoms worse. A car accident chiropractor in Georgia has all the tools to diagnose injuries and sources of pain.

They begin with reviewing the patient?s medical history and performing a physical exam to make an accurate diagnosis. After the diagnosis, they custom design a treatment plan for the victim according to their injury and symptoms.
