Ellicott City, MD ? A goal for many companies is to employ a team full of individuals who are hardworking and truly care about their work and their customers. Alternatively, an aspiration for many people in the workforce is to become a part of a team where they are treated like family and can work towards becoming the best in their field. Luckily, Heil Plumbing, a local plumber in Ellicott City, MD, and their Master Plumber, Ike Bagley, seem to have found the perfect fit in one another as Ike was recently promoted to Estimator/Job Manager.

According to the Heil Plumbing team, ?Ike started working with us during his summer breaks from school when he was only 15 years old. He then came to work with us full time after he completed high school, went through the apprenticeship program, and had his Journeyman?s license ? all by the time he was 20! He left and went to college, got a degree, and came back to the Heil Team where he studied hard? and earned his Master Plumber license which is the highest professional level of plumbing.

As an Estimator/Job Manager, Ike will now be going out to customers' homes to look at their plumbing problems, determining the best way to solve the problems, and answering any questions throughout the process.

For over 40 years, the Heil Plumbing family has been serving the residents in Ellicott City, Columbia, Fulton, Laurel, and the surrounding areas with reliable plumbing solutions. As a local and family-owned business, Heil Plumbing takes pride in employing only friendly, supportive, and caring people who value both their company and their customers.
