London, England - December 20, 2021 - PRESSADVANTAGE -

Croydon, South London based PSS International Removals is pleased to confirm that they are providing international removal services for UK citizens who are looking to move to Italy. More information about the company's services can be found at the following link: <https://www.pssremovals.com/removals-to-italy>.

CEO of PSS International Removals Liam Witham says, "Following Brexit, it was expected that the movement of people from the UK to other EU countries would be reduced due to the end of free movement. However, demand still remains quite high. Italy has always been a popular country for Brits to move to, either for work as an expat or to retire, and with the impact of Brexit still being felt across the UK, more and more are finding this to be an appealing idea. In fact, we have been pleasantly surprised at the number of British people currently seeking to move to Italy. Although the entry requirements are harder than before, it has not put people off following their Italian dream."

PSS International Removals provides household removal services to Italy by road freight, in addition to box and luggage shipping services for those who are travelling with less. The company is one of the UK's most trusted international removal providers. In fact, they only undertake overseas moves. Due to the number of people they help move to Italy every year, they are able to offer the best prices and still maintain high standards of service.

PSS International Removals' services are comprehensive. They offer a door-to-door removal service, from anywhere in the UK to anywhere in Italy, overseen by a dedicated move manager. They also provide free home/video surveys and access to an expert International Removal Consultant who will help customers deal with documentation, Italian customs requirements and similar matters. PSS International Removals also has tailor-made shipment protection policies that serve to ensure that the move will be executed as smoothly and as safely as possible. Their mover and packer services include full international export standard packing and wrapping service and the provision of export quality boxes, cartons and other packing materials, along with custom wood casing/crates if needed; professional antique wrapping; fully trained export packers; and advice on preparing items for transport to Italy.

On their website, they also have blog posts exploring why UK citizens might want to consider a move to Italy. One such post shares data from the British Embassy, indicating that around 30,000 Brits are living in Italy with most in the more economically prosperous north of the country. Liam Witham says, "Whatever your reasons may be for your move to Italy, you can be sure of one thing: you will be immersing yourself in a country full of rich culture, an abundance of history and good food." The services provided by PSS International Removals have earned the company a lot of praise from their customers. In a 5-Star Google review, Juanita Fuller writes, "Moving to the complete opposite side of the world is a different kind of beast! I had the unique challenge of packing up twenty years of belongings to be shipped all the way to Melbourne. I was super overwhelmed. Fortunately, PSS Removals took all of the stress out of it. Very grateful for your service, thanks so much!"

In yet another 5-Star review, Max Douglas writes, "I have moved from two countries before and trust me the process is really very hectic. PSS International Removals planned the operation carefully and were well organised, the entire removal was done in a very timely-fashion. Right from the packing to and final delivery was a hassle free process. They really take account of customer's needs. Definitely a company I would recommend further."
