Richard Henderson, owner and President of M. B. Kiser Heating & Air Conditioning Co. Inc., says, "We are a local company that has built a reputation of dependability over the course of seven decades. So while we are the oldest HVAC business in the Dallas/Fort Worth area, more than that, we are contractors that people have come to trust. This is your home or your business, after all, probably the biggest investment you have, and so you want to make sure that one of its most essential systems is in the hands of technicians who have been trained in all of the latest technologies and HVAC repair practices. At the end of the day, you want the peace of mind that comes with knowing that the job was done right, on time and on budget.?

Residential, commercial and industrial customers can rely on the technicians from M. B. Kiser for the gas or electric furnace needs. They are experienced and knowledgeable regarding the various kinds of available units and this allows them to recommend the most energy efficient units that are suitable for a particular home or commercial building. With more than seven decades of experience in the industry, they have worked with a large number of industrial and commercial customers in the Dallas area, which means they can easily make suggestions on the most suitable and energy efficient air handlers and heat pumps. The company also has an in-house metal shop that can handle the complete range of sheet metal or sheet copper fabrications that may be required for a particular project. This is important because every project has its own unique requirements and having an in-house metal shop provides them with the flexibility that is needed to provide precisely what is needed to do the job correctly. With the large number of furnaces and air conditioning systems available in the market, the skilled technicians from M. B. Kiser can provide guidance in navigating the confusing variety of choices. They have been assisting people in the Dallas and Fort Worth area for more than seven decades, allowing customers to get the HVAC units that are properly sized for their specific requirements.

Founded in 1945, M. B. Kiser Heating & Air Conditioning is a family-owned and fully licensed HVAC company that has been serving the Dallas/ Fort Worth area for more than 70 years. Throughout the years, the company has developed an excellent reputation when it comes to quality service, professionalism and in surpassing customer expectations. Their technicians have been trained in all of the most advanced technologies and HVAC repair techniques. Customers will have peace of mind not just in the knowledge that the technicians from M. B. Kiser really know what they are doing but also because they are honest and there are no hidden fees or other unpleasant surprises.
