TX-based Happy Bunnies Child Care School would like to reach out to Austin residents who may be searching for a reliable and affordable daycare center. Happy Bunnies provides excellent childcare in the Austin area while charging reasonable rates. The care center is well known in its community for its commitment to providing a stimulating day care environment for young minds. Many parents have grown to trust Happy Bunnies entirely with their children.

"Happy Bunnies Child Care School is a happy place for your happy children," says the daycare center. "You have a great daycare school right in the heart of Oak Hill, at the Y intersection between Highway 290 & Highway 71 in Southwest Austin. Here, you will find the well-proven British curriculum. You get high levels of care built on Magdalena MacLeod's years of teaching experience. It's something unique, something no other Oak Hill daycare school can give you."

Oak Hill parents are already well aware of the daycare's excellent child care, and places at the school are rapidly filling up. There are only 94 across all rooms and age groups, and many parents have already claimed their spots. Some rooms and age groups have waiting lists filled with eager parents hoping to get their young children into the school. Those interested can get their child on the list by booking a free consultation with Director Magdalena MacLeod on the daycare center's site. Consultations are free, and parents are under no obligation to commit at this point. Happy Bunnies Child Care School operates on a first-come, first accepted basis, and getting a child on the list dramatically improves their chances of being accepted.

In addition to offering excellent childcare, Happy Bunnies Child Care School is conveniently located. Happy Bunnies Child Care School is on a peaceful street, which effectively means a very low chance of the children under their care being disturbed by external events. Many find the daycare's location very convenient, considering it is likely to be on their work route. This means parents usually do not have to go out of their way to drop off or pick up their children.

The Austin child care center is run by Magdalena and Colin Macleod, a husband and wife duo working in childcare for years. Their two children were among the school's earliest students, and they wish to share the environment that shaped their children with other parents.

"I was born in Slovakia to a family that has been in the childhood education and teaching sector for generations," says Magdalena Macleod. "I trained as a daycare and preschool teacher and graduated from the Pedagogical Academy in 1993 with distinction. For the last 11 years, I have owned and operated my childcare centers. I have spent my entire life working with children of preschool age. The childhood programs at my school are unlike anything you will find at other child care providers."

They have been running schools for years, starting with Magdalena's chain in 2008, where they took over three well-established daycare centers and preschools near London, England. Those daycares had been running for years, and the Macleods' experience with Magdalena's chain was what laid the foundations for their early learning centers in England and Austin, Texas.

Their experience in childcare has yielded excellent results, as can be seen from some of the comments parents have to share about the daycare center. One happy parent, Holland, explains that "I cannot say enough good things about the team at Happy Bunnies. As a first-time mom, dropping off my 3-month-old for the first time was the scariest moment of my life. The regular updates and the loving care she gets at Happy Bunnies have made these six months with them (my daughter is now nine months old) a dream. There is nothing better than knowing I am leaving her with people who care!"
